Pentagon Taps President McEwen; Episcopal Head To Address Seniors

Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in America, will give the baccalaureate sermon at Hamilton's commencement services June 14. Bishop Sherrill will also receive an honorary degree.

Formerly ninth bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts, he became the twentieth presiding bishop in June, 1947, one of the youngest men to hold that office.

Graduated from Yale University in 1911, Bishop Sherrill received the degree of bachelor in divinity from the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1914.

Trustee of Boston U

He has been a fellow of the corporation of Yale University since 1934, and is a trustee of Boston University, chairman of trustees of the Masters School, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., trustee of the General Theological Seminary in New York City, trustee of the Groton School, and served for a time as trustee of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Bishop Sherrill is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. His honorary degrees include doctor in divinity from Yale, Harvard, Trinity, Philadelphia Divinity School, Princeton, Columbia, Hobart, Seabury - Western Theological Seminary and the University of Edinburgh, the University of Rochester, the University of Denver and Union College; doctor in laws from Boston University and doctor in sacred theology from General Theological Seminary.

During the second world war, he was head of the Episcopal Church's Army and Navy Commission and later was elected chairman of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains. He flew to the Aleutians and later made two trips to the European war fronts in connection with this commission which supervised the chaplains of more than thirty Churches. Bishop Sherrill was a member of the President's Committee on Civil Rights in 1947.

He is the author of a biography of the later years of Bishop Lawrence, covering the period from the end of Bishop Lawrence's own book, Memories of a Happy Life, under the title, William Lawrence, Later Years of a Happy Life. In 1948 his Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale Divinity School were published under the title, The Church's Ministry in Our Time.

Interviews Scheduled

The following companies will interview seniors next week for prospective employment: International Business Machines, Mercantile Stores Inc., and Prudential Insurance Company. Appointments for interviews should be made in the Dean's office.

FINAL TOUCH: Dan Fulmer (third from right) gives a few pointers to members of the cast of Art Rath's "The Nightingale." Fulmer, who is directing the play, discusses it with Peter Mayer, Rath and Mary Priest.

"Theatrical Magic," Says Critic Of One-Act Plays

By Frank Piano
Assistant Professor of Romance Languages

Before penetrating the solitude of his genius, every artist is at first an amateur and an imitator. Was it psychologically sound, then, to pit two student plays against the wit and polish of a seasoned veteran like G. B. Shaw? Not only sound, but brash—as only youth can be brash. The transition from "The Devil's Disciple" to Adour-Rath was by no means a jump from one planet to another. With flamboyant shenanigans, melancholy charm and demoniac will, David again held his own against Goliath. Olé!

A Gay Splash

The Charlatans' annual evening of one-act plays got off to a gay splash with Kedar Adour's "The Dog Watch," a noble bouillabaisse. Let's face it, a play is above all else action that brings about an event. And this comedy melodrama really moves. We meet a group of lusty sailors preparing to go on shore leave, thus to stave off thoughts of Korea and possible sudden death. Tender and violent, the crisp dialogue is peppered with words that make the glands speak as well as the heart. But our sense of the universal comicality of man's lot is touched as these "gobs" taunt a fellow sailor who is still in closer contact with the idealism and mystery of youth. A racy and sensitive acting job was turned in by "Conchita" Frank Iuorno, Ted Law and the crew.

Philosophical Melodrama

Art Rath's "The Nightingale" is a philosophical melodrama set in rural Japan. It calls for stylized acting and carefully calculated movements. Emotion is portrayed largely by the way the

Noted Geographer To Lecture Here On Monday Night

Trevor Lloyd, chairman of the department of geography at Dartmouth College, will lecture on the geography of Greenland Monday in the chemistry auditorium at 8 p.m. He will relate Greenland's society and economics to its geography, using colored slides and movies which he took on his many field trips there.

Lloyd is the author of Sky Highways—Geography from the Air and Canada and Her Neighbors. He has also written numerous articles for educational journals.

He was born in London and, after receiving his bachelor of science degree at the University of Bristol, he came to the United States. In 1940, he was awarded a Ph.D. at Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts, and in 1944 he received an honorary M.A. from Dartmouth College. During this time he served as president of the National Union of Students of Great Britain. In 1944 he became a professor of geography at Dartmouth, and in 1946 he was made chairman of the department.

President Robert W. McEwen was tapped for honorary membership in Pentagon, the College's senior honor society, at yesterday's Chapel assembly.

The action was initiated by the five members of Pentagon of the class of 1953 and approved by a vote of the society's alumni members. The selection was made because "Dr. McEwen is far more than a capable president; he is devoted to Hamilton and has been ever mindful of its problems and needs." Continuing, Pentagon said, "President McEwen has distinguished himself by outstanding service to Hamilton College."

The last honorary members tapped by Pentagon were Clark Minor, chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Professor Edgar B. Graves. They were tapped two years ago.

President McEwen, who completed four years of service here last month, received his A.B. degree from Macalester College in 1927 and his B.D. from McCormick Theological Seminary in 1930. He then went on to earn an A.M. from the University of Chicago in 1931 and a Ph.D. from the same institution in 1933. He also holds an honorary L.L.D. from Hamilton and an honorary L.H.D. from St. Lawrence.

An ordained Presbyterian minister, he served as assistant to the Dean of the Chapel at the University of Chicago from 1932-33. From 1934-38 he was Professor of philosophy and religion at Hanover College. He was at Carleton College from 1939-44 and held several positions, including librarian, professor of philosophy and professor of history of religion. He was president of Blackburn College from 1945 until he came here in 1949.

President McEwen was tapped by Don Grant, Governor of the 1953 Pentagon. Other members assisting in the ceremony were Charles Bates, Irv Reid, Ron Seaman and Don Webster.

Company Sets Up New Scholarships; Hill Receives Aid

Hamilton College has been selected by the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation as one of 24 small liberal arts colleges across the nation to benefit from the company's newly-originated scholarship program.

To inaugurate the plan two members of the Class of 1956 and two incoming freshmen will be selected this summer by the Admissions Office from deserving applicants who are interested in future careers. The four students will receive scholarships covering the complete cost of tuition for four years and also providing reasonable allowances for books and required fees.

By the fall of 1955 and thereafter there will be eight Hamilton men, two from each class, receiving such scholarships.

In announcing the educational fund Sunday, Morse G. Dial, president of Union Carbine, estimated the future annual cost of the program will be $500,000. Dial stated the purposes of the plan to be:

1. To assist deserving students, interested in a business career, to obtain a college education.

2. To assume larger numbers of men and women trained in technical and non-technical colleges for future adminstrative careers in industry; and

3. To encourage and give financial aid to a cross section of smaller American colleges of traditionally high standing.

Oxley To Leave Hill In June

Phil Oxley

Associate Professor Philip Oxley, chairman of the geology department, is resigning from the Hamilton faculty in June, President Robert W. McEwen's office announced this morning.

Oxley, who has been teaching on the Hill since 1948, decided to resign in order to return to his specialized field, stratigraphy, for further experience. He expects to work for an oil company as a petroleum geologist. He is unable to announce the name of the firm as yet.

In an interview with The Spectator, Oxley said, "I had intended to delay the announcement until my plans were definite, but I thought that the College community should know of the decision now."

Letter To Editor

"In re-reading your stimulating editorial of February 20, I was once again impressed by the value of its suggestions. However, I was also impressed by the fact that it was directed almost wholly towards the Faculty, in terms of what they should do to improve the quality of education here. Would it not be equally useful fo ryou to explore new attitudes and characteristics of students which might contribute to an increasingly rich educational experience at Hamilton? An alert, responsive and responsible class — challenging and critical — can bring out the best in any teacher. A class unwilling to scratch in intellectual dirt, barely filing away a minimum of information to be thrown back at some examination time, will kill even the best of teachers. In the famous definition of education (Mark Hopkins, a student and a log), remember that the student was a vital and necessary part of the "formula."

Channing B. Richardson

Editor's Note:
Although we did not choose to discuss student attitudes in our editorial three weeks ago, we were aware that an alert and responsive class is vital for the kind of classroom procedures which we outlined in the editorial. Such student attitudes, however, often can be awakened by faculty members, if they do not already exist. But if a professor tries and fails to stimulate his class, much of the blame for the "dull" class must certainly rest with the students.

The Rev. A. T. Mollegen will speak informally to the Hill Episcopal group Sunday afternoon at 4:30 at the ELS House.

Oxley . . . con't

Expressing regret in leaving Hamilton, he added, "However, I feel it is unwise to continue in teaching without further experience in applications to stratigraphy, which is my primary interest. Since some 70% of the practising geologists are employed in petroleum work, which is largely stratigraphy, I plan to return to that field, in which I was employed for several summers before coming to Hamilton."

"Both myself and Mrs. Oxley," he commented "have had very happy and rewarding experiences at Hamilton and have appreciated our associations with students, faculty, administration and the people of Clinton. We regret to end this association."

Interclass Basketball Slated By Was Los

An interclass basketball tournament, sponsored by Was Los, will be held Sunday at 2:00 p.m. The freshmen will play the seniors, and at 3:30 p.m. the juniors will play the sophomores.

On the following Sunday the winners of each of the two games will play off for first and second place, and the losers for third and fourth. According to Harlan D. Calkins, who is in charge of the tournament, the results of the games will count in determining points for Class Day competition.

IFC Urges Action On Colgate Affair

The Interfraternity Council asked the College Administration to redouble its efforts to schedule Hamilton and Colgate houseparties on the same weekends, in a motion passed unanimously at Monday night's meeting.

The motion, made by Bob Hendel, DU, followed discussion of the effects of Colgate men during Carnival. The motion also asked the Administration to again request Hamilton men to behave properly whenever they visit Colgate.

characters look and move. As has been said, the charm of the act is indeed the actor. There, too, Mary Priest and Pieter Mayer, as the flirtatious, sad Geisha girl and the dogmatic but wavering monk, beautifully assisted by Neil Gould as the insane, cruel warlord, create and sustain an atmosphere of inner trepidation which amounts to sheer theatrical magic. Important also was the excellent music, singing, makeup, staging and author's imagination for the effectiveness of the total impression.

Good Roles

Talma, a baroque thespian of the last century, once moaned to Victor Hugo that "the actor is nothing without his part, and I have never had a real role." Richard Hehmeyer and Ruskin Kerr couldn't lodge a similar complaint after gleefully romping through Shaw's "Court Martial." The suavity and wheezes of these polished actors won loud cheers from the receptive audience. Indeed, Gregory Bathon and the other supporting players likewise brought the play pungently to life.

The productions were done in the streamlined form of "theatre in the round." Now the Hall of Commons is hardly conducive to a frame of fantasy. And yet the Charlatans—the actors, playwrights, production manager, lighting director etc., as always, swelled the scene by means of "the brightest heaven of invention." Even so, how much more appropriate if they could have a real theatre — their kingdom for a real theatre. . .

Th Charlatans' three one-act plays will be shown tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Hall of Commons. The plays are: Art Rath's "The Nightingale," Kedar Adour's "The Dog Watch," and a scene from George Bernard Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple."

Student Council Sets Petition Dates

The Student Council announced yesterday that the period for the circulation of nominating petitions for president of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes began at noon yesterday and will end at noon on March 19. All petitions shall be submitted to the Election Committee of the appropiate class.

Successful petitions must meet the following requirements:

1) Each petition shall contain at least 20 names and no more than thirty names.

R P I Downs Hill '6' In Season's Finale

By Jim Moodey

Last Saturday night before 4500 fans in the new field house at Troy, R.P.I.'s sextet overwhelmed Hamilton's Continentals by a 14-3 count in the season's finale for both teams. The defeat was the twelfth in a row for the Blue, while the Engineers, in capturing their fourteenth win of the year against three losses and a tie with Clarkson, clinched a berth in the four-team N. C. A. A. championship tournament in Colorado Springs. Last night in the opening game of the tourney, the Trojans faced the University of Minnesota.

Stiff Fight

The Engineers started out strong, but their early rushes at the Hill cage were broken up by defenseman Byrne Kinney and Dusty Huston and goalie Gerry Wullschleger. Finally, after four scoreless minutes, senior defenseman Herb LaFontaine fired a 25 foot screen shot into the upper right corner to put the host team in the lead. Minutes later, two members of the Engineers' famed "Marksman Line",

Second Period Rally

Down six goals at the end of the first period, the Continentals came back strongly in the second, the drive paying off after five minutes when Bruce King drilled a blazing forehand from 20 feet out past the startled R.P.I. goalie Billy Fox. Later in the period, in a scramble at the edge of the Engineers' crease, May got the first of his two goals, flicking Bob Atherly's rebound under Fox, Vicious checking by Kinney and Houston during the period and a series of nice saves by Wullschleger held the high-scoring Trojans to three goals.

TDX Downs ELS In Hockey Finals

Freshman Bob Hunt got the hat trick to lead Theta Delt to the intramural hockey championship with a 3-1 playoff victory over E.L.S. last Sunday morning. Meanwhile, Psi U clinched the intramural bowling championship by a narrow margin over D.U.

E.L.S. drew first blood in the hockey playoff after four minutes of the first period on Paul Noyes' solo effort against T.D.X.'s Hans Ullstein. Hunt then took charge, tallying just before the end of the period to knot the count, and once in each of the final two stanzas to clinch the verdict. Ullstein turned in another fine performance in the Theta Delt nets, while defenseman Charley Cole starred in a losing cause.

Despite their failure to defeat D.U. during the regular season, PsiU still gained the bowling title on points. The unofficial totals show Theta Delt in third place, with Alpha Delt fourth.

Psi U, Theta Delt and D.U. continue to dominate the intramural basketball league with two weeks of play remaining, E.L.S., with only an upset defeat to Squires, is still in contention behind the three undefeated leaders.

The Chapel Board will sponsor a voluntary communion service in the Chapel Sunday morning at 11 a.m. All faculty and students interested are urged to attend.

PRICE ELECTED

The hockey team last Saturday elected Dick Price, '54, of Beverly, Mass., to succeed Bill May as Captain for 1953-54. Price, a three year letterman, played defense for the Continentals in his first two seasons before being switched to line this year.
